JANUARY ART SHOW PREVIEW

Art in the City of Angels

The Los Angeles Art Show brought in more than 30,000 visitors and multi-million dollar art sales in 2008, but the 2009 fair promises to be the most innovative and eclectic to date.

The who's who of the art world will converge on southern California for the 14th annual Los Angeles Art Show, which takes place on January 21-25, 2009.

The Fine Art Dealers Association (FADA) and KR Martindale Show Management have announced that the venue of this year's show will be the Los Angeles Convention Center at 1201 South Figueroa Street in Los Angeles. The move will nearly double the size of the Los Angeles Art Show and increase the number of international galleries to 175 exhibitors. With 2008 exhibition figures exceeding 30,000 visitors and achieving record-setting multi-million dollar art sales, the 2009 fair promises to be the most innovative and eclectic show to date.

"Los Angeles is a destination for art," says show producer, Kim Martindale. "The well-established Los Angeles art scene is diverse and continues to expand both in the number of galleries and collectors locally and internationally situated. The Los Angeles Art Show's move to the LA Convention Center mirrors this growth."

Over 15,000 works of art will be available for sale, from paintings, drawings, prints, photographs, video,

Arcadia Gallery, Symphony in Red, oil on canvas, 58 x 46", by Zhao Kail Lin

Nedra Matteucci Galleries, Untitled (Pueblo Figures), oil on canvas, 13¼ x 15¼", by Emil Bisttram

George Billis Gallery, Dark as Night, oil and aluminum leaf on wood panel, 12 x 9", by Sarah Coleman

This year will be the show's first to take place in the Los Angeles Convention Center.
